TALK

How to make a faculty at a university of applied sciences more research focused? – Practical Experience

BIO

Tobias Knedlik is Professor of International Business at Fulda University of Applied Sciences. He has been Dean of the Faculty of Business since 2017. Over the years, he has actively supported the transformation of the faculty. An important element has been its transformation into a research-oriented faculty. To this end, Tobias Knedlik has taken various measures to increase the faculty's research activities and increase its output. He is also involved in running courses on faculty management organised by the German Centre for Higher Education Development (CHE).
